Our Blog

Promoting literacy through free books

Literacy benefits the economy, society, and the quality of life of NWT residents. We decided that we could promote literacy by promoting all the places Yellowknifers can find free books...Read more

We're the family, youth and adult literacy and essential skills centre for excellence.

We support literacy and essential skills in all the official languages of the Northwest Territories.

We're also plain language specialists.

Enter our Indigenous Languages Month contest until April 23

Check out our Facebook page for a lovely tribute to Indigenous language role model Jane Vandermeer. You can honour an Indigenous language role model by entering our photo/video contest. Tell us how their language has opened doors for them - at work, on the land, to their culture, etc.

Evaluation conference in Yellowknife May 31 to June 1

The early bird deadline to register for the NWT Evaluation Symposium is April 23. The symposium is hosted by the Alberta/NWT Chapter of the Canadian Evaluation Society, in collaboration with Dedats'eetsaa: the Tłı̨chǫ Research and Training Institute of the Tłı̨chǫ Government. It will highlight Indigenous approaches to evaluation with a special emphasis on land-based programming.

Apply now for Northern Youth Leadership summer camps

The deadline to apply for Northern Youth Leadership summer camp is May 11.

Funding

Inuvialuit fund education

The Designated Amount Fund accepts applications from organizations and individuals. It supports education to preserve and understand Inuvialuit culture, history and language, or to advance personal development. The deadline is July 13, 2018 for individuals.

Funding for non-profits

The NGO Stabilization Fund provides short-term support to NGOs who deliver critical GNWT-funded programs and services to NWT residents. Eligible one-time costs include general management, governance, organizational development, and extraordinary operations costs. The deadline to apply is May 11, 2018.

News, Opinion, and Research

Indigenous youth should 'live and dream' in their own languages

Coty Zachariah began teaching his daughter about her culture from the day she was born. In some Mohawk communities, it is traditional to offer words of welcome in the Mohawk language just as babies are emerging into the world...Read more

Libraries fight digital divide by loaning internet access via Wi-Fi hotspots

Two years after running a pilot project to assess whether there was a demand for letting library users "borrow" internet access, the Toronto Public Library has decided the answer is a resounding yes. The library recently expanded the project five-fold from its modest beginnings, with up to 1,000 library users and their families now getting free, unlimited access to the internet...Read more

Books coming to NWT communities with De Beers' Books In Homes program

De Beers' Books in Homes program launched in 2003. It sees representatives from De Beers enter several community schools and set up a book fair for students...Read more

Why American students haven't gotten better at reading in 20 years

Every two years, education policy wonks gear up for what has become a time-honoured ritual: the release of the Nation's Report Card. Officially known as the National Assessment of Educational Progress the data reflect the results of reading and math tests administered to a sample of students across the country...Read more

Can we really teach 'Indigenizing' courses online?

Internet users around the world have the opportunity to participate in "Indigenous Canada," a Massive Open Online Course offered through the University of Alberta and the Coursera consortium of online learning providers.

Similar courses - for instance on "Reconciliation through Indigenous education" and "Aboriginal world views and education " - are offered...Read more
